Père Lachaise - rue Lepic - place du Tertre - Sacré Coeur - Montmartre Vineyards

start: metro stop Père Lachaise finish: metro stop Lamarck-Caulincourt

Follow boulevard Ménilmontant to the south up till the entrance of Père Lachaise cemetery on your left. Enter through the gates and ask the gatekeeper for a map. Many famous people are buried here, for instance French singer Edith Piaf and American singer Jim Morrison. Walk around and look at the graves of famous and less famous people in this park-like cemetery.

Go back to metro station Père Lachaise and take metro line 2 to Blanche station.

Enter rue Lepic uphill and take a look at the colorful market and several foodshops. On the corner of rue Cauchois is the café Des deux Moulins, famous for the shooting of the film Le fabuleux destin d'Amélie Poulain. At nr. 11 stands the famous Moulin Rouge. Vincent van Gogh lived for a time at nr. 56 and at nr. 77 you will find the Moulin de la Galette, one of the famous cabarets of the 19th and 20th century.

Keep following rue Lepic, meandering uphill, go left at place J.B. Clément and right into rue Norvins. You now run into place du Tertre. In the center are all kinds of artist and their paintings. You can have your portret drawn here. Around the square are lots of cafés and restaurants.
